CRIMINAL CASES ARE DISPOSED OF

Grand Larceny Charge Against Will Gibson is Dismissed and Thomas B. Scott is Fined.

CROSBY CHARGES ARE ERASED

Noble Suicide is Recalled When Attorneys Ask Permission to Withdraw New Trial Motion.

A number of cases on the criminal docket were disposed of today when the April term of the circuit court was opened. Several incidents of recent months were recalled when a number of fines were returned by the court and other cases were dismissed.

The two charges of forgery against Edward Crosby, the former trustee of Rushville township, which were filed by field examiners who examined his accounts, were formally dismissed by Judge Blair this afternoon on account of the ignoramus returned by the grand jury. It will be remembered that the grand jury in its session at the opening of the last term of court exonerated the former trustee in its report which was made after the charges had been thoroughly investigated.

The case of the State of Indiana on the relation of Iva M. Hobbs against John Gibson on paternity proceedings was dismissed. The court in his finding said that it had been learned that the defendant had made suitable provisions to care for the child and that the costs should be assessed against the plaintiff.

The case of the State against William Gibson, an employe at the Hiner livery barn was dismissed. Gibson was charged with grand larceny on the strength of an affidavit. It will be remembered that Gibson was alleged to have stolen an overcoat, the man who filed the affidavit declaring that he had left the coat in the Hiner barn and had later seen Gibson wearing it. He also charged that Gibson stole a pair of gloves from him. Gibson protested his innocence and said at the time that he had paid the owner for the gloves.

The calf episode in Washington township was recalled when Judge Blair fined Thomas B. Scott one dollar and costs for assault and battery. A few months ago Scott's calf escaped and was later found on Knecht's property. It was alleged that Scott accused Knecht of stealing the calf and struck him. Knecht filed an affidavit against Scott and he was arrested, giving bond for his appearance.

The Ben Noble case was recalled in circuit court this morning when Judge Blair was informed by attorneys for Noble that the defendant in the murder case had committed suicide. The case was not dismissed, however, as it was expected it would be, as the attorneys have not yet received their fee which the Decatur county council appropriated for them. The attorneys filed a motion that they be allowed to withdraw the motion which was filed one week ago last Wednesday, asking for a new Noble trial. This explains what will be done with the voluminous motion which was filed. The clerk of the circuit court has had the document filed away in the safe for safe keeping. It will be turned over to the attorneys who spent so much time and money in preparing it.

MONEY TO MOTHER.

Dr. F. J. Drake has completed the duty of paying the funeral and other expenses incident to the death of Iando Bernandi, the Italian, who committed suicide after attempting the life of Fred Smith and wife. The foreigner left an insurance policy of $500 and considerable money. The balance after the funeral expenses were paid, was sent to his mother in Italy.

WOULD OBSERVE MOTHERS' DAY

Charles A. Greathouse Issues a Proclamation Asking Date to be Remembered.

WILL BE FRIDAY, MAY TWELVE

Purpose of Setting Aside Day is to Honor and Uplift Motherhood.

Charles A. Greathouse, State superintendent of public instruction, has issued the following proclamation to teachers and school officials, calling on them to observe Friday preceding Mother's day (the second Sunday in May) as Mother's day in the schools of the State:

"The second Sunday of May has been set aside for the international observance of Mother's day. The schools are requested to observe the day on the Friday preceding this date. The purpose of this day is to honor and uplift motherhood. The badge is a white carnation, 'mother's' own favorite flower, or the national colors.

"Every tender sentiment that leads to noble action should be nurtured carefully in a nation accused of commercialism. Each boy and girl should be admonished to make this day so full of love and joy for 'mother' that she can never forget it and to make it so overflowing with unselfish deeds and practical helpfulness, that other mothers bereft, ill, or unfortunate, may have a share in the abundant joy. Instill in the minds of the boys and girls of the land that on this day, at least, motherhood sits enthroned, and the wise and the good of all lands bow before her throne to do her reverence and to acknowledge their obligations. On no day should the nation's flag float out more triumphantly than on Mother's day, when 'mother' comes into her own.

"Let teachers strive faithfully to direct the beautiful sentiment and ideals of the day into wholesome and practical channels. Lead the boys and girls to realize that mother's honor and happiness will be in proportion to their own worth and achievements, beginning with the record for the day and ending in chivalrous respect and gentle consideration for all womankind. Extend the ideals of 'mother's day' to include all the ideals of the world."

CHICKENS, SPRING PESTS

Prowling Hens Cause Their Owners no End of Trouble.

Now that flower beds and gardens have commenced to materialize, the annual outcry against the neighbor's chickens is reaching the police headquarters. Telephones in police headquarters are weighted down with the stories of invasion by prowling hens. The complaints become so numerous that the police today decided that the only thing the officers can do is to make arrests in cases where people will file an affidavit against the owners of trespassing chickens.

MINISTER DIES.

The Rev. Arthur Tappan, a widely known Presbyterian evangelist and preacher, is dead at his home in Kingston, Decatur county. He preached at Clarksburg on the Rush-Decatur county line and it is to his efforts largely that the Clarksburg Memorial church was built.

Today African Moslems number nearly sixty million, about one-third of the total population.

CONSTITUTION TO FREE SLAVES

Uncle Tom's Conception of "By-Laws" For Indiana Contains Clause Prohibiting Slavery.

ITS MODERN EVEN IN DETAILS

Eliza Escapes Across Ice From the Blood Hounds and is Rescued by Grabbing Scroll.

Governor Tom Marshall's constitution which is to be submitted to the voters next year is supposed to be up to date, but it contains one clause that is entirely superfluous and which relates to a matter prohibited by the constitution of the United States, says the Columbus Republican. In other words the Marshall constitution prohibits slavery in the State of Indiana. The new constitution is supposed to have four doors, extra gas lamps, a wind shield and a mohair top but in spite of its reputed up-to-date-ness it harks back to the State constitution of 1851 and seeks to reenact the clause which prohibited slavery.

The slavery clause in the Marshall constitution is section 37 and it says: "There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude within the State otherwise than for the punishment of crimes, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted. No indenture of any negro or mulatto, made and executed out of the bounds of the State, shall be valid within the State."

This clause reads as if the neighboring States of Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan and others were slave holding States and that when the slaves escape from those States and seek refuge in Indiana, there shall be nothing in the law by which their owners in the neighboring States can recover them here.

It goes back to the days of Uncle Tom's cabin. One can almost see Eliza rushing across the ice from Milton, Ky., to Madison, Ind. Standing on the bank of the Ohio river is Governor Marshall with a copy of his new constitution in his hands. He reaches down and Eliza, panting and breathless from her mad race across the frozen river, from her flight from the trained Siberian blood hounds, grabs the constitution and pulls herself up. Suddenly the blood hounds waver, put their tails between their legs and whine. Simon Legree and his cruel overseers stop and gaze aghast. For before them stands Eliza pointing to the clause in the new Tom Marshall constitution. Recovering her breath and silencing the baying hounds with a look she reads "No indenture of any negro or mulatto, made and executed out of the bounds of the State, shall be valid within the State."

She turns to Governor Marshall to thank him and his constitution for saving her. Had it not been for the new constitution prohibiting the capture of slaves within the State she would have been caught and "sold down the river." As it is she is saved, Simon Legree and his cruel overseers get in their automobile and go back to Louisville and the blood hounds are sold to a sheep raiser for watch dogs. Eliza gets a job with the State board of accounts. The plot to Uncle Tom's Cabin is blown sky high and the time honored show will have to be re-written. A suggestion for the new anti-slavery play to take the place of Uncle Tom's Cabin is a thrilling drama entitled "Uncle Tom's (Marshall) Constitution, or Life Among the Looney." The sight of Uncle Tom saving Eliza with the anti-slavery clause of his new constitution is going to be more effective than the old time flight of Eliza across the ice in the original play.

So Indiana is to be a free State.

That will be news to many. Slaves who escape from other States here will be free. That ought to stir up excitement in Illinois, Ohio, and other slave holding States. There shall be no slavery in Indiana. Shake off the shackles and play the Suwanee River.

Slavery was prohibited by the thirteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States of America. The thirteenth amendment said: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

As the United States constitution prohibits slavery what's the use of Tom Marshall's new and up-to-the-minute constitution prohibiting something that has been prohibited by the law of the land for fifty years? If the rest of Uncle Tom's Constitution measures up to the anti-slavery clause it's a pretty bum show.

COMMITTEES ARE WORKING ON PLANS

Success of Monster Revival Seems Certain—Personal Workers Meet Tuesday Night.

The monster union revival meeting to be held here June 7 to 21 and conducted by the Rev. W. W. Orr is fast taking form and promises to be a huge success. The committees which have been appointed by the Ministerial Association have already commenced work and plans are being made to arouse interest in the meetings. The committee of Personal Workers will meet tomorrow night at 7:45 in the church parlors of the United Presbyterian church. The committee is composed of all of the ministers of the city besides the following: Albert Fleehart, Dr. J. B. Kinsinger, Mrs. Captain Enoch, A. C. Brown, J. M. McFarridge, S. C. Canner, and F. O. Buckner. Anyone who desires to volunteer in the work may do so and is urged to attend the meeting. This committee will meet each week in the different churches, the various ministers presiding.

YOUNG BUSINESS MAN WILL MARRY

Miss Anna Jordan and Peter Demmer Will be Wedded at Catholic Church Tuesday, May 9.

BANS ARE CALLED OUT SUNDAY

A union in the holy bonds—not Demmer's Bond—of matrimony will take place at the Catholic church at six o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, May 9, when Miss Anna Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jordan of Pearl street, and Peter Demmer, of the firm of Demmer Brothers, will be married. The bans were called out in the Catholic church yesterday morning for the first time and will be announced for three Sundays in succession. The young couple is preparing a home in this city where they will reside. Mr. Demmer is a popular young business man and his announcement that he intended to float on the matrimonial sea came as a big surprise to most of his friends although it has been known by his intimate friends for several weeks. Miss Jordan is a well known young woman of this city.

NEAR RECORD MADE IN COURT

Many Cases Are Disposed of on the Opening Day of the April Term.

GIBSON DIVORCE SUIT ERASED

Several Cases Dismissed and New Dates For Hearing Are Set in Others.

A near record was made in the circuit court today, the first day of the April term of court when four civil cases and four criminal dockets were disposed of. Judge Alonzo Blair came up from Shelbyville this morning to open court, but returned again this afternoon and will not be back to assume his regular duties here until Friday. He will hear the arguments in the Streight will case in the Shelby circuit court tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. The will case has already occupied several weeks of the court's time there. The introduction of evidence was finished Saturday.

There will be no court here tomorrow and the next day, but on Thursday, Special Judge Horde of Shelbyville will in all probability hear a case here. It is expected that the case of William Bliss against Will Oldham will be tried at that time.

Today was a busy one for dismissals especially on the civil docket. The docket was called this morning at the opening of court and the issues made up.

The case of Alpheus P. Walker against George G. Council and John F. Boyd on a note and attachment for five hundred dollars was dismissed.

The case of Clara G. Gibson against Robert M. Gibson for a divorce was dismissed by the court. The defendant was formerly editor of the Daily Democrat and later was engaged in the business of conducting subscription contests to increase the circulation of newspapers. It will be remembered that Mrs. Gibson filed a complaint in which she made rather startling charges against her husband. It is said that the domestic difficulties have been smoothed over and the court action was dismissed.

The case of Ed N. Hill of Carthage against Will Draper for the possession of some land in Ripley township will likely be tried in another county, as a motion has been filed for a change of venue. The county where the case will be tried has not been named. Thomas Davidson of Decatur county was appointed as a special judge in the case and it was to have been tried during the last term of court while the Noble trial was in progress, but some disagreement was had over the question as to whether or not a jury was to decide the case. Mr. Davidson has refused to act as a special judge since that time.

The issues have been opened and more pleadings have been filed in the case of Richard Warrum against Crawford Fairbanks and the Southern Indiana Gas Company, sent here on a change of venue from Hancock county, which was to have been tried Wednesday of this week and the date for hearing the case has been set for May 5.

Auto Racing as a Sport

PURSE MAY BE $50,000

AUTO RACERS TO CONTEST FOR FORTUNE IN GOLD COIN

Accessory Makers Boost Big Prize Offer for 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis Decoration Day.

Although the $25,000 offered by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway as a prize for the 500-mile International Sweepstakes race, next Memorial Day, is the largest purse ever awarded in an automobile contest, the winners of this long grind will receive many additional prizes. The latest side offer to be made in connection with this race is the Monogram Oil Stake of $1,000, to be divided among the winners of the first four places as follows: $500 first, $250 second, $150 third and $100 fourth. This offer is made by the Columbia Lubricants Co., of New York, makers of Monogram oils. The offer was made through Fred J. Wagner, official starter of the American Automobile Association.

The Remy Electric Co., of Anderson, Indiana, has offered $1,000 additional to the winner of the big classic event, providing the winning car is equipped with Remy ignition. It is expected that at least $10,000 more will be offered by various accessory makers, and the total prize money to be won on the brick track in this one event will be nearly $50,000. The winner's share of this will probably be about $20,000 and the drivers of every car which finishes in the ten first positions will receive from $1,000 on up to the capital prize, which probably will be about $20,000.

Thirty entries have been made thus far for the event and the Speedway management expects that the field which starts will contain at least forty cars, if not a full half-hundred.

Officials of the American Automobile Association who have been working in the interests of the grand circuit for the 1911 season are inclined to believe that this long race, as the opening of the season, will bring greater activity in motor racing affairs throughout the entire year and spell greater success for the sport than heretofore has been known. It is almost certain now that at least a half-dozen of the foreign drivers will be in the field to start, and it is probable that the famous Lancia, who won the 1907 Vanderbilt, will return to this country, to drive for the first time since he annexed that famous road classic.

Reports from the Speedway indicate that the crowd which will witness this great motoring spectacle will number more than 150,000 persons. Indications of this are taken from the fact that more reservations for seats have been made three months in advance of the event than for any other contest ever held in America. Advice has been received from many of the larger cities, including New York, Philadelphia and Boston, that the automobile clubs will tour to Indianapolis to attend, and block reservations for seats to accommodate them have been made in many instances.

HAUNTS THE HORN

The Phantom Ship That Shows
Itself Near the Cape.

IT IS REALLY A HUGE ROCK.

But to Vessels Passing Through the Strait of Le Maire It Appears to Be a Bark Running Under Short Sail. Other Rock Ship Formations.

The "phantom ship" seen in the vicinity of Cape Horn is, as has been proved by the investigation of various hydrographic bureaus, nothing more or less than a rock which under certain atmospheric conditions bears a deceptive resemblance to a ship.

Very often vessels coming from Europe to the west by way of Cape Horn have been startled to see what appeared to be a derelict with the water washing over her deck. If the sailors were of an imaginative turn they would invest the unknown ship with ghostly qualities and call her the Flying Dutchman or sometimes the "ghost ship" of Le Maire, from the strait of that name, where she was usually seen.

One of the stories which have been longest remembered is that of the ill-fated Crown of Italy, which sighted the supposed derelict and subsequently went ashore. The Crown of Italy was standing close to the jagged black rocks at the entrance to the strait of Le Maire when she sighted what seemed to be a waterlogged bark drifting on the rocks of the strait. Many other ships rounding the Horn have seen a similar apparition, and the various hydrographic offices of the world have received many reports to that effect.

Some years ago the Norwegian bark Servia got into Seattle with the tale of a phantom ship that almost exactly corresponded to that given by the Crown of Italy. The second officer of the Norwegian vessel declared that he had seen a derelict with sails set and decks awash drifting in through the strait. It was this report that led our government officers to make public the declaration that the phantom ship was nothing but a combination of rocks and shadows.

The numerous reports of derelicts or ghost ships always appearing in the same place led even the Argentine government to look into the matter. A tender was sent out from the nearby lighthouse with the object of making an investigation, and it was found that the apparition was due to a strange freak of nature. Among the black jagged rocks that line both sides of the strait of Le Maire there is one in particular which, under certain atmospheric conditions, bears a deceptive likeness to a ship. The formation of the rocks and the shadows they cast combine to produce the effect of a bark running under short sail.

The passage through the strait of Le Maire is not often made. Steamers shorten the route by going through the strait of Magellan, while sailing vessels usually prefer to be entirely on the safe side by going still farther south and rounding the Horn itself. Only under the most favorable conditions of weather do they slip through the strait of Le Maire on the outward trip, going toward the southwest, but never when bound for the north. For this reason many old sailors have never met the ghost ship or the rock ship.

Those who have seen it give a minute description of the rock and testify to its striking resemblance to a ship. It seems to be standing head on, pointing to the south and low in the water. The sails are shortened as they would be in what sailors call half a gale. The whole formation is very dark, as if the hull were painted black and the sails weather beaten. It has three masts and is higher on the fore than on the main. Upon coming on the side of the vessel the illusion vanishes and the whole thing resolves itself into a conglomeration of black rocks. The perpetual fog of these regions helps, of course, to befuddle the vision.

The rock looking like a ship is by no means a rare natural formation. Almost every sailor has seen one in some part of the world. In the Clipperton islands there is a great white rock looking like a three masted schooner leaning on the wind with her royals set and the sun shining on her white sails.

About six or seven miles west of Honolulu there is a rock known as French Frigate rock because once upon a time a French frigate went ashore on it. The cliffs looked so much like a ship that the frigate was deceived and thought she was meeting another vessel.

St. Paul island, in the middle of the Atlantic, is said to look very much like a ship when approached from a certain direction, but it is a place that mariners prefer to give a wide berth.—Harper's Weekly.

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl, I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my schoolmates, and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. As I grew older, my hair commenced to come out, just a little at first, but gradually more and more, and then began to turn gray. I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy to try a bottle. My hair was quite thin and gray when I began using Sage and Sulphur, and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, being thicker, darker and more glossy than it had been for a long time. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is now as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is still in splendid condition.

ONE DYNAMITER CONFESSED ALL

Ortie McManigal Told Detectives of Awful Crimes.

THE WHOLE STORY IS NOW OUT

One of the Men So Long Shadowed by Burns, "Weakened" When Pressed For Details of Long Train of Dynamite Horrors and Told Whole Shocking Tale, Implicating Secretary McNamara as the Head of Dynamiters.

Chicago, April 24.—The existence of a remarkable document setting forth in its ninety closely typewritten pages, the story of how 112 men were killed, property worth more than $3,500,000 destroyed, and how arch plotters, outrivalling the Borgias in their thirst for blood, sat in secret council and condemned to death innocent workingmen, has just become public.

It is the story told by Ortie McManigal, the structural iron worker arrested with John J. McNamara of Indianapolis, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Iron Workers, and his brother, James McNamara. The story was told by McManigal as he sat in a bedroom in the home of City Detective W. H. Reed, 9034 Commercial avenue, South Chicago, on the night of April 13. He started talking at midnight and it was breakfast time when he finished. Seated in the bedroom were William J. Burns, head of the detective agency responsible for the dynamiters' capture; Detective Reed, several operatives from the Burns agency, and an official stenographer of the police department. In an adjoining room Jim McNamara was sleeping, not knowing that his acknowledged confederate in crime was telling of their fiendish deeds. The little group in the bedroom sat awe-stricken, held spell-bound by the horror of McManigal's tale. He spoke carelessly of their crimes, telling of how the explosive was "planted," how he had visited union officials, and was paid for his work, and of the explosions in which the three other members of the "wrecking" band had figured. When he finished he lifted his right hand and swore he had told the truth.

The Logical Man to "Sweat."

This document was in a wallet carried by Assistant District Attorney Ford of Los Angeles, when Captain of Detectives Stephen Wood turned over McManigal and McNamara to the California officials Saturday afternoon. While labor leaders throughout the country Sunday were voicing their indignation at the "framed up" charges, and the "deliberate kidnapping" of the accused, the three men—the two McNamaras and McManigal—were being rushed to Los Angeles, where twenty-three indictments charging murder and like crimes are hanging over them.

After the arrests were made it was decided that McManigal was the logical man to "sweat." His captors told him they were government men and that he was wanted for robbing a safe in a sub-postal station at Thirty-first street and Cottage Grove avenue.

He was taken into a room and quizzed. At first he denied any knowledge of the crimes. For hours he was plied with questions with but little rest. But shortly after midnight he began to break down. At first his story was incoherent, but as he proceeded he told with vividness of the crimes in which he acknowledged being implicated. He said that Jim McNamara, H. A. Schmidt and Dave Kaplan had been implicated in the crimes. He started out by telling of the first outrages committed by the band, leading up to what he called the first big job, the destruction of a railroad bridge and iron works at Peoria, Ill., on Sept. 4, 1910. Previous to that time he said he had figured in half a dozen "small jobs." In all of them except one men lost their lives. McManigal said that he had been selected as one of the men to do the Times building job, but they had given him "other work" in the central west and he could not get there in time. He said Jim McNamara, H. A. Schmidt and Dave Kaplan "did the job."

Directly Implicates Secretary.

McManigal went into details regarding all of the "jobs." He told how activities had been shifted to Texas and then to South Chicago, and later to Milwaukee. In El Paso twenty men were killed in an explosion.

When asked to fix the number of men killed in all the murderous expeditions, McManigal said:

"I guess there were a hundred or so."

He told of visits to Indianapolis, where he claims he saw John McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Iron Workers. He says that McNamara furnished them with funds and with the explosives which they used. He said that they all received their orders from Secretary McNamara in carrying out their murderous work.

He said that all places they dynamited either used structural iron obtained from plants having the open shop or places belonging to the erectors' association, which was opposing the structural iron workers' union. The confession gives in detail the beginning of the attacks against the erectors' association, comprising the greater number of the structural iron operators in this country, and especially on places where material supplied by the American Bridge company was being used.

"I cannot tell what the confession said," Captain Wood said. "Mr. Burns has that in charge. As I understand it there may be some further arrests. The disclosure of the contents of the confession would make these more difficult. I was let in on the secret three months ago, and it was so carefully guarded that only Detectives Biddinger and Reed were permitted to discuss the case with me."

MORE DYNAMITE

Four Hundred Pounds of the Stuff
Found at McManigal's Home.

Tiffin, O., April 24.—Detective Burns, head of the agency which bears his name, and one of his operatives, uncovered 400 pounds of dynamite in a shed in the heart of this city Sunday evening, within twenty minutes after stepping from a train which brought them from Indianapolis. The dynamite, Burns declares, was stored here by Ortie McManigal. Detective Burns had a key in his pocket to unlock a padlock on the door. The shed, owned by James McManigal, father of Ortie McManigal, stands within one hundred yards of several residences. As at Indianapolis, Burns was sure of his ground before he made a move. He knew exactly where the explosive was to be found, and on being met at the station by Chief Meyers of the Tiffin police, went directly to the shed.

CHARGE AGAINST LABOR OFFICIAL

Alleged to Be Instigator of Dynamite Outrages.

HE IS TAKEN AT INDIANAPOLIS

Secretary John J. McNamara of the Structural Iron Workers Charged With Being the Brains of the Conspirators Who Have Been Carrying on Their Destructive Work For Years—Taken to Los Angeles.

Indianapolis, April 24.—Three detectives have been in charge of the offices of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers here since they were raided Saturday night, when John J. McNamara, secretary of the association, one of the most prominent labor leaders in the United States, was arrested charged with sending his brother to Los Angeles to destroy the Times building, and planning this and other outrages. All the books and papers were removed to the police station and will be submitted to the grand jury. The prosecutor went carefully over some of the books, and it is now believed that others in the union besides those now under arrest were either actively connected with the dynamite plots or were cognizant of what was going on. Superintendent Hyland said that it was not unlikely that indictments would be returned here against some men who have not been mentioned in the dynamiting plots.

At almost the same moment that J. J. McNamara was arrested in his Indianapolis office, his brother, James B. McNamara, was being taken out of Chicago, charged with actually placing the dynamite which blew up the Los Angeles Times building. Arrested with McNamara was Ortie E. McManigal, who is a member of the iron workers' Chicago branch. The prisoners were turned over to Under Sheriff Brain of the Los Angeles department, and left on a fast train for Los Angeles.

Suppressed News of Arrest.

Detectives say that James McNamara is the mysterious "J. B. Brice," to whom the dynamiting of the Times building is said to have been traced, and who was held responsible by a grand jury for the murder of twenty-one persons, who perished in the explosion. Both men were arrested in Detroit on April 12, it is alleged, as they were making ready to destroy the new $2,000,000 railroad terminal there. That John J. McNamara, who is declared to be the brains of the "open shop" war, might be taken into custody at the proper moment, news of their arrest was suppressed.

T. F. Jones, in whose stable, a mile west of town, which McNamara had rented, was found dynamite sticks, was questioned by the police and gave a description of three men who accompanied McNamara to the stable at different times. He was not positive as to dates, but the officers believe that it can be shown that these trips to the stable preceded only by a few days the explosions at other places, and that the dynamite used in these explosions was carried away by the man who always had a large grip. The theory of the officers is that McNamara stored the explosives in the basement of the Central Life building on the circle, in which the structural ironworkers' union had its offices, and just before it was to be used he would take some of it to the Jones stable and then supply the men there with the amount they were expected to use. They argue that this would be safer than having it carried out of the building in the city.

Head of Organization.

There is no doubt in the minds of the detectives and police officers here that J. J. McNamara is the head of the dynamiting organization that has blown up more than a hundred buildings in the past three years. They are satisfied that McNamara is not only the head of the criminal organization, but that he was its inspiration and has directed all its movements, purchasing the dynamite to be used in explosions, the clocks by which the dynamite was exploded, and deciding where and when the explosion should occur. The finding of dynamite in large quantities in the actual possession of McNamara, both in an old stable which he had rented, and in the basement of the American Central Life building, in which he had stored a box of the explosive after having gotten the consent of the custodian, is regarded as conclusive. If anything had been wanting to prove that this explosive was to be used in criminal operations, it was found when a dozen clocks for exploding dynamite were found in a barrel in the same basement, and near it coil after coil of fuse, all going to show that the man who owned the death-dealing combination was equipped for wholesale destruction of property. The finding of this equipment is conclusive evidence in the minds of the police that the right men have been arrested and that this city has been for three years the headquarters of one of the most desperate bands of criminals that ever existed in this country.

Detective W. J. Burns, who engineered the raid, had been here many times and there has not been a day since the Los Angeles explosion that McNamara's movements were not watched by some of his men. They knew that he had rented the stable, and when they went there they found two quarts of nitroglycerine and twenty sticks of dynamite, together with fuse and caps in an old box. Burns was accompanied by Sergeant James Hossick of Los Angeles, who carried the proper requisition papers from Governor Johnson, and they were presented to Governor Marshall. The charge was murder in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building and the loss of twenty-one lives. Governor Marshall at once honored the requisition, and a warrant was issued on it. McNamara was found in the offices of the structural iron workers, where a meeting of the executive board of the union was in progress. He was taken before Police Judge Collins and after arraignment was turned over to the California officer, who at once departed with his prisoner for Los Angeles.

SOMETHING NEW IN DEFRAUDING BANKS

Assistant Cashier Found Profit
In Mutilated Bills.

Louisville, Ky., April 24.—Peculations extending through a period of ten years and amounting to $38,600 have been discovered in the affairs of the Southern National bank here, and William S. Parker, jr., aged thirty-five, assistant cashier, and an employee of the bank since boyhood, confesses to being the defaulter. It is announced that all but $10,000 has been paid back to the bank.

It is claimed that Parker manipulated what is known as the "redemption fund account," and, although the national bank examiner went over his books twenty-seven times since the first alleged defalcation, no evidence of wrongdoing was ever uncovered as to Parker.

His method of defalcation was to appropriate the mutilated bills to be sent to Washington for redemption, take possession of the good bills returned and fix his books accordingly. It was the bank examiner's custom not to probe the "redemption fund account," and this fact Parker knew, engineering his transactions accordingly.

Parker's alleged defalcation might have extended through an indefinite period had it not been for an accident. Ten days ago he prepared to take a vacation. The day he left the office a package of new money that had been sent in return for mutilated bills was received and put away, presumably by him. In his hurry he left the slip accompanying the money from Washington lying on his desk and his substitute found it. Turning to the books he discovered it had not been entered. He then searched vainly for the money. Lack of entry and lack of money resulted in an examination of the redemption fund account and the discovery of the shortage.

About every man in Mexico appears to be an insurgent against the idea of having anyone else run things.

If the Democrats have put the products of Democratic districts on their farmers free list, we have yet to find out about it.

If Diaz wants his star battery to practice their curves right in front of Douglas, Ariz., he at least ought to put up a back stop.

It is said the acts of Congress on March 4 may be illegal. But the Supreme court says most of their acts are illegal anyway.

When the butchering times come on one year from next fall, will the good old Democrats of Rush county go to the polls and vote to be slaughtered or will they vote their sentiments?

They are separating church and State in Portugal. As the minister can no longer be policeman, the tendency of the American boy to stand on his head in Sunday school will soon be observed.

If President Diaz does not emerge from the barn cellar and remove his scorpions out of range of our back yard someone else will be hiring the help and he will be up in the back lot hoeing the corn.

The Insurrectos demand the surrender of Jurarez, but if they only knew it, they are much more comfortable sleeping on Mother Earth than they would be in one of those already tenanted Mexican beds.

If it took 30 women 18 hours to count 1100 ballots cast by the Daughters of the American Revolution, how much before July 4 will we get the results of presidential elections when women hold the offices?

We make an awful fuss if the boys play three old cat within reach of the dining room windows, but the Mexicans are still popping over the Arizona people while indulging their favorite sport of insurrections.

In determining the reasons constituting sufficient ground for intervention in the Mexican troubles, our legislators must be careful that they do not sacrifice a dozen lives to save one.

It makes one's blood boil to read of the reckless acts of both parties to the Mexican strife in doing their fighting at a point where innocent non-combatants may be killed. It is a slap in the face of neutral rights, that they would be permitted by commanders representing governments that they knew what international responsibility means.

But one must also think of the thousands of Americans now residents in Mexico from the Rio Grande to Yucatan. What are the fever blooded masses of Mexico's under world going to do to them, if they should learn by telegraph that our troops had marched across the border?

Bitterly as our citizens along the border have cause to resent the lawlessness of the contending forces, it will save a big bill in American blood and cash, if they can remain safely in the vegetable cellar during such time as the bullets are flying over the heads. Uncle Sam could well afford to pay for anything they may lose in this way.

Indiana now has a registration law. It will be necessary to register next year, before the 1912 election. Notice by publication will be given by the auditor as to the days and places of such registration. If one, otherwise entitled to vote, fails to register he will be barred from the exercise of suffrage.

That being true, party managers will get busy and see that the votes are recorded on the registration days. The expenses of this registration is paid out of the county treasury the same as other election expenses are paid.

The law as passed is known as Senate bill N. 6. One of the first provisions is that the changing of any precinct boundary lines must be done at the March session of the board of commissioners instead of the June session, as is now the law.

Each precinct is given a registration inspector, who is appointed by the commissioners, this appointment being made at the April term of the board of any year when the election will be held in November following. Two registration clerks are also appointed, their appointment being recommended by the chairmen of the two political parties casting the highest number of votes at the preceding general election. These recommendations are made to the precinct inspector and the latter individual appoints the clerks so recommended. Blanks and a registration book are furnished by the county auditor.

The first registration day is in May, the 118th day preceding such general election. The second registration is in September, the sixtieth day before the election, and the third and last registration comes in October, twenty-one days before the election.

Lovely weather, ain't it?

A flock of straw hats was reported over Shelbyville at noon today, headed in this direction.

We wish it distinctly understood that it is the county auditor who pays for the crows if there is any paid for. This colyum offers a bounty only on the hides of dead flies.

Still you should have more respect for the woman who wants to vote and can't than for the man who can vote and won't.

In other words, if the waiter earns two beans a week, how much does a coffee urn?

That was submitted to us through the mail and we give it to our readers to see if they can fathom the deep mystery.

Well, if cats bear germs how much does Teddy bear?

It's all very well during these spring days to call a spade a spade, but what are you going to call a garden rake when you step on it and run one of the teeth in your feet?

Portland, Oregon, will permit only three flies in the corporate limits this season. Only two copies of the Daily Republican go to that city, but it may be seen what a great effect this colyum is having in war on flies in the far west.

Amusements

The Star Grand will present three reels of pictures tonight and tomorrow night in which Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill's shows are reproduced. The pictures are said to be very realistic and give in detail the two great shows which are true representations of life on the western plains.

The Palace theater will show two reels of pictures this evening which include a Biograph and a Selig. The Biograph, "The Chief's Daughter" tells a story of somewhat different type of Indian vengeance. A prospector wins the love of the Indian chief's daughter and cruelly casts her aside, when his Eastern sweetheart arrives unexpectedly. The squaw, however, has a chance to show up his perfidy and so the fellow not only loses his Eastern fiancée, but the Indian maiden as well, she and her squaw companions driving him from the neighborhood. "The Fortune Hunters" is a comedy, describing the experiences of two foreign adventurers who met with an American millionaire's daughters and soon gain favor with them. The outcome is unexpected. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Vaudet will show a varied program tonight with three reels of pictures. The first will be an Imp drama, "The Dream." This is one of this company's feature films and is said to be very unique in plot and acting. The second picture is a Bison drama, "A Girl of the Plains." It is a picture of western life and is full of thrilling situations. The last picture is a Thanhouser, "The Wild Flower and the Rose." This one is said to be equally as good as the other two. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The new Portola theater will present two reels of pictures tonight, one a drama and the other a comedy. The Edison film, "A Night of Terror" is a comedy, said to be one of the most laughable plots that was ever seen here. The Kalem film, "Sailor Jack's Reformation" is a drama with a touch of pathos in the story that is taken from scenes in the streets of a great city. Salvation Army works are active in the story and bring about the new life for a rough and immoral sailor. A new illustrated song will be sung.

CHAPTER VII.

It was while they were standing, still somewhat confused, that Lillian appeared in the doorway and cast a sharp glance at them both. "You have not mended that pink frock of mine, Elsie," said Lillian in honeyed tones. "Really, my dear, I had hoped to find it done. I would like to wear it this afternoon. Better see to it right away."

Elsie nodded and hurriedly left the room.

"I am afraid you are a sad flirt," charged Lillian, shaking her finger at Phillip. "Already you are embarrassing that pretty little maid whom you were accidentally kind enough to send to me."

"Has Mr. Breed come in?" asked Phillip, deliberately ignoring her accusation.

"Now I know there is something in all this flirtation," she laughed, though still somewhat piqued. "Yes, Mr. Breed has come in, and he is waiting for you in the library." And with a coyness that he would not see she led him downstairs to where Henry Breed received him with extreme cordiality.

"Well done, my boy, well done!" said he, shaking hands with Phillip.

"Come back and look at my picture gallery now."

In a room opening off the library to the right of the fireplace, where Breed now led him with the glee of a school-boy, a row of photographs ran around the wall just above the wainscot. They were the photographs of all the more important men of Wall street, but now upon each photograph there was an X shaped mark of red ink.

"I checked them off as they fell, one by one," said Breed, with infinite malice in his withered old face. "Five years ago, when they made that attack on me and beat down my cereal stocks to almost nothing, I vowed that I would put them out of existence, and I have done it," and he rubbed his thin hands together. "With your help, my boy," he hastily added, "with your plan and your genius and your own hatred—and with my resources. We are a great team, my son. I have had reports about you. I know every move you made, what you did in every hour that you were in New York. How much money did you make of your own?"

Phillip drew a long breath. "Nearly half a million," he replied.

"That is right," said Breed, nodding his head with emphasis. "It was in a good cause, eh, Lillian?"

The girl laughed for answer. It was a good cause.

"It is all in a good cause," Breed continued, as if arguing against some accuser. "Business will be healthier. The Stock Exchange, instead of a mere clearing house for countless bucket shops, will become once more a place for the legitimate exchange of securities. It is a great work I have done for the country, but they won't realize it until I am dead. Your deals, Phillip? Is every one closed that could be closed?"

"Every one," returned Phillip with satisfaction. "In a few cases I could not secure stocks I wanted, but for the greater part I did. Those who could not pay had nothing to pay with."

"Right again!" and once more Henry Breed nodded his head vigorously. "The stocks were the main thing after we got back all our cash. Come! I will show you something that no one ever saw but Lillian and myself. Where is Zephph?" He looked cautiously all round the room.

"He is out in the park," said Lillian. "I don't want him to see or to know. Come this way."

Back from this apartment was a bedroom, and in it was a closet hung neatly with clothes on hangers. Breed tumbled about for a moment at the back of this closet, when suddenly the whole rear wall swung slowly upon its center. They passed through into a narrow passage concealed between the chimneys of the two rooms, and from this after swinging the closet wall shut behind them the three passed down one long stairway and then another into a deep subcellar steel lined, like a deposit vault, with four cell-like passages, the heavy steel doors of each secured with a combination lock. Breed led them slowly through, pushing advance electric buttons as he went.

"Absolutely impregnable, this vault," said he in considerable pride. "Armies could not get through it unless they knew how. The walls are six feet thick, of alternate layers of steel plate and cellulose, which dynamite could hardly destroy. The plates were shipped here from Germany in plain boxes, and German workmen were brought here directly from the ship without the slightest knowledge of where they were going. When the work was done they were sent away, and not one of the men knows where he was. Look here." He led them into an inner vault, and here were row upon row of iron drawers filled with greenbacks neatly bound in packages, with the amounts marked on the outside. At the end of the vault were rows of drawers filled with gold in coin and ingots.

"Money!" said Breed, gloating over the contents as he opened and closed these drawers. "Money!" said he, and he rubbed his lean old hands together, while his eyes began to gleam. "Not all these receptacles are filled, though. When I had these vaults built I calculated how much money there was in the United States and built in enough drawers to hold it."

There was something so sinister in the way he said this that even Phillip, himself seething with enormous ambitions, was startled.

Lillian plucked Phillip by the sleeve and drew him outside the vault. "He always likes to be alone when he is down here," she whispered.

Phillip stopped in the second passage to examine with interest the heavy hanging of the door. Lillian drew quite near him and slipped her hand within his arm. He could feel the warmth of that hand instantly. He was afraid of this girl, afraid of himself. The thrill she gave him was not like that which he had shared with Elsie. With Elsie it was love; with this girl—he drew slightly away.

"YOU MUST KEEP AWAY FROM ME!" SAID HE HARSHLY.

"Suppose anything should happen to Mr. Breed?" he asked. "What would become of this vault? I presume its combinations are written in some safe place?"

"They are not written anywhere," she told him. "There is only one person in all the world besides my grandfather who knows how to get in here, and that person is myself. Of course I would not tell it, would I?"

He looked down at her. He half bent forward, seized with a mad impulse to take her in his arms. He was ashamed of that impulse.

"You must keep away from me!" said he harshly. "There are things I want to do—big things!"

The girl laughed lightly, well content for the time, but a shrill chuckle startled them both and made them turn hastily. Old Henry Breed stood in the door of the vault, rubbing his hands softly together.

"Good!" said he. "Good, Phillip, my boy! I knew you were about it. You keep as strong as that and I will make you anything you want to be—anything!"

Out in the library they found the gaunt wireless operator, whose eyes seemed to have the peculiar catlike property of shining in the darkness. The operator was just turning on the lights, and a flash of lightning outlined him as he reached up to press the hanging bulb.

"I have a wireless for you, sir," he said to Mr. Breed. The old man took the yellow slip and drew under the chandelier. Presently he turned to Phillip triumphantly.

"The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange, after having suspended the exchange for a week in a vain attempt to straighten out their muddle, have just called a meeting of the members, and the only five to attend were four of the five with whom you did business. The seats of all the others are for sale, and there are no buyers. The Stock Exchange," and his voice rose to a shrill and tremulous shriek, "is wiped out of existence! There is no Stock Exchange!"

At a very early hour the next morning, in his bedroom near the top of the house, the gaunt wireless operator was upon his knees before his open trunk, his long fingers slowly turning the knob of a combination lock. It was mounted upon a plain iron plate and was now temporarily clamped upon the front edge of the trunk to keep it in its normal vertical position. Blagg, as he turned the knob, kept his eyes carefully averted from it, but he listened most intently. Presently his acute fingers caught the faintest perceptible shade of difference as quickly as, if not quicker than, his ears, for they stopped rigidly upon the instant. Blagg now looked at the dial, then consulted a small card which he held in his left hand, and a look of intense satisfaction, amounting almost to fierceness, flashed into his beady eyes. The last number of the involved combination had been found by the sense of touch and hearing alone!

"Cash!" he whispered. "Millions of cash, all gathered into one place!"

He changed the combination, marked it carefully upon his card and started once more, with averted eyes and intent ears, to turn the knob. In an office on the second floor Phillip Kelvin stood over a large hand drawn map, on which every mile of every railroad in the United States was carefully set down in strong lines, though in inks of six different colors, indicating the six main financial groups. Starting from the network of lines radiating from New York, Phillip's clear eyes followed each road in turn, ramification by ramification, to the end, going slowly and pausing over each branch as if to fix more firmly in his mind certain facts connected with it.

"To make these all one color," he mused; "that will be one step. Then, with millions of cash!"

In his deep subcellar vault, dynamite proof, electric drill proof, army proof, old Henry Breed stood before his rows upon rows of iron drawers. One of them was open, and the electric light glinted upon gold. Breed rubbed his withered hands together.

"Cash!" he gloated. "Millions of cash and millions more to come!"

There was the sound of a bell in the big two story hall. Blagg hastily stopped his practice, restored his combination lock to its strong box, turned triple keys upon it and double locked his trunk.

Down into the vault tripped Lillian Breed, her dark cheeks red from her brisk morning walk, her dark eyes bright, her scarlet lips parted over her white teeth. "I hurried in just ahead of Dr. Zephph, grandfather," she said. "He will be here in a moment. The breakfast bell rang as I came up at the door."

With the haste of a boy Breed followed her out through the four vestibules, closing the heavy doors of each one behind him, throwing off the combination of its lock and turning out the lights beyond.

"And in all this world only we two know," he said.

"Mr. Kelvin knows," she reminded him.

"But not the combinations," he hastened to assure her. "Do you know how I have won my supremacy? It is by finding big men to do both my planning and my executing; by knowing such men when I see them. Kelvin is one of these, and to such a man as he the greatest incentive that can be given him is to show him the tools with which he may work. I showed him these enormous stores of actual cash for that purpose, and the knowledge is safe with him. I know men. This is not a game of tennis, at which a woman can play. I have taken you into my confidence this far only because in case anything should happen to me I want you to get at the stores that will make you the richest woman in the world."

"Dr. Zephph will be hunting you," she reminded him.

Aroused from his momentary forgetfulness of his one bugar, the shrewd specialist whom he had employed to look after his health and who, in that capacity, had become a necessarily oppressive burden, he hurried up through the one room in his house to which Zephph had been denied access, and with Lillian passed into the hall where Dr. Zephph stood awaiting them.

"You promised when I left you here at the house this morning to join me at the head of Big lake," he charged Breed. "If I cannot take your word for a longer morning walk, I shall have to stay by you until you do. Put on your hat and heavy coat."

"But breakfast is ready," protested Lillian.

The doctor peered at her with such open contempt that she flushed and straightened her shoulders. It was evident that there was something deeply antagonistic between these two.

"If I employ a man to make me do things I suppose I ought to do them," Breed laughed and, securing his hat and coat, went out with the Spartan doctor just as Phillip came down the stairway.

Lillian waited for Phillip and tucked her arm playfully into his as he stepped from the bottom stair. "I almost had the honor of going in to breakfast with my grandfather," she said gayly, "but see how much greater honor my disappointment brings me."

"I admit it," said Phillip, with a smile, "only you are not expressing my merit strongly enough to do me justice."

In the dining room they found only Mrs. Kesselsaer and her nephew. Mrs. Kesselsaer bowed stiffly to Phillip.

"How charming you are looking this morning, child!" she exclaimed. "Did you ever see such a picture of health, Herbert?"

"She is the goddess of the morning," he stated, "the very liqueur of life, the very spirit of spring, the very quintessence of what you may call 'em. Howdy, Miss Lillian?"

Bread and Dyspepsia.

The conclusion that wheat bread is unfit for dyspeptics, sometimes jumped at because ill effects are noticed to follow its use, is erroneous. On the contrary, it has been pointed out by Bouchard and others that farinaceous food is peculiarly adapted to some dyspeptic patients. It is the microbes in the starch which are capable of producing irritating acids that cause the trouble. To avoid this Bouchard recommends that only the crust or toasted crumbs of the bread be used by dyspeptics, particularly those whose stomachs are dilated. The reason of this is explained by the fact that baking temporarily, though not permanently, arrests the fermentation of dough. When it is again heated by the warmth of the stomach the fermentation is renewed. In cases where the bread is toasted brown through the fermentation is stopped permanently.—Family Doctor.

She Wanted Both.

The matinee performance was about half over when a distracted looking woman with a curly haired youngster of six sought out the man in the box office.

"There are boxes on your chairs in there," she began, "and they say drop a nickel in and get a box of candy."

"Yes, I see," asserted the man in the box office.

"Well," she continued indignantly, "I dropped a nickel in for my little girl."

"And couldn't you get the candy?" queried the box office man. "Wait; I'll see if we can get it out."

"Oh, yes," answered the woman; "I got the candy all right, but I couldn't get the nickel out."

And to the ticket man at least this remark furnished a more dramatic moment than any in the play.—Louisville Times.

Dean Swift and the Cook.

"Moderation in all things" is the best precept for everyday life. There is a good story about Dean Swift apropos of the value of never overdoing anything.

The dean's cook one day overroasted the leg of mutton for dinner, and in consequence she was summoned to the dining room. "Cook," said the dean in a pleasant voice, "this leg of mutton is overdone; take it back and do it less."

"Impossible, your reverence!" exclaimed the cook.

"Well," replied her master, "supposing it had been underdone, you could easily have done it more."

"Certainly, your reverence."

"Then," said the dean, "let this be a lesson to you. If you commit a fault always take care that it is a fault which will admit of a remedy."

BORROWING.

Neither a borrower nor a lender be,
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.
This above all: To thine own self be true
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man.
—Shakespeare.

PRESIDENT WOULDN'T STAND FOR SNOBBERY

Head of Naval Academy Forced to Resign.

Washington, April 24.—Correspondence between Representative Korbly, Secretary of the Navy Meyer and Superintendent John Marshall Bowyer of the naval academy, regarding the snubbing of Miss Katherine Beers at academy social functions because she was a working girl, has been followed by the resignation of Superintendent Bowyer.

It is understood that President Taft is directly responsible for Superintendent Bowyer's retirement. He was a pupil at Yale university of Prof. Beers, Miss Beers's father, and it is learned that he has taken a deep personal interest in the case. The superintendent gave "ill health" as his reason for quitting. The resignation will become effective May 1.

While nothing is said at the navy department that there is any connection between the resignation and the snobbery investigation, it is generally understood that the affair would not bear further probing. This was one feature upon which Representative Korbly was intent, and congress probably will be asked to investigate social affairs at the naval school.

Secretary Meyer concludes his letter to Representative Korbly with the statement that the department has directed that Captain Bowyer, the superintendent, address a letter of apology to Mr. Beers and his daughter.

Turkish Massacre Story Denied.
Washington, April 24.—With the arrival of strong reinforcements from Constantinople, the rebellion in the Albanian vilayet of Scutari has been quelled by the Turkish government, according to advices to the Turkish embassy here. Reports that the insurgents at Tuzi had defeated the regular troops and taken the city recently were officially denied.

THE ARMISTICE AGAIN EXTENDED

Peace Now Seems In Sight In Mexico.

A BASIS FOR A SETTLEMENT

Negotiations Now Being Carried on Between Madero and Representatives of President Diaz Are Looked Upon as Being the Most Hopeful Indication That Has Appeared Down That Way For a Long Time.

El Paso, Tex., April 24.—The armistice between the insurgents and the federals has been extended for another five days. The time dates from Sunday afternoon at 1:30, when Francisco I. Madero put his signature to the terms. Prior to that General Juan J. Navarro, commanding the federal troops in Juarez, had already signed the document. The agreement provides that there shall be no fighting during the term of the armistice and that each side will take no further steps to reinforce or construct fortifications while its terms are in operation.

The insurgents are to be given permission to take food for themselves and horses, also clothing from El Paso or Juarez without molestation. These supplies are to be passed over the international bridges between El Paso and Juarez without payment of duty to the federal officials of Mexico. The Mexican officials are to have a right to search the supplies for arms or ammunition, but agree not to molest anything that is not ammunition or arms. The peace negotiations are to be carried on from El Paso. Dr. Vasquez Gomez, in charge of the Washington confidential agency of the insurgents, is expected to come here at once. The Madero family is now here and Oscar Braniff and Esquivel Obregon, congressmen from Mexico City, have been here for several days representing President Diaz, their personal friend. The senior Madero, father of the rebel chieftain, and Rafael Hernandez, are close friends of Finance Minister Jose Yves Limantour.

Madero has set up housekeeping in a little adobe hut near the El Paso brickyard. A few minutes after signing the armistice Madero said his friends and others who are engaged in the peace negotiations will continue their work in an effort to draft terms suitable to both sides, precedent to disbanding the insurrecto army if any agreement is reached.

All the peace advocates are jubilant. The father of the insurrecto leader, Messrs. Obregon and Braniff, unofficial commissioners from President Diaz, and others interested in peace, appear to believe that a basis has been reached on which there can be a settlement. Nothing is said here of the report that Madero must be made vice president of Mexico in case of the conclusion of hostilities, and very little credence is given it. It is understood that the peace terms will include the pledge of the present Mexican cabinet that all reforms recommended by General Diaz in his last message will be carried out in good faith and that amnesty will be granted to all men in the army who will go to their homes in peace.

Having faith that the army will soon be disbanded, labor contractors are beginning to arrive here to hire men for railroad work. One man, who hires thousands of men every month, believes he will be able to place several thousand men on railroad work in the United States in a few days. Railroads and mining men in Mexico are anxious to get men. Farms and ranches throughout Mexico need men, and it will not be a month until all will have employment if they want it if the army is disbanded.

ADDRESSES CHURCH

The President Speaks to Unitarians of Evangelization.

Washington, April 24.—President Taft went to All Souls Unitarian church Sunday morning and told the congregation that during the last campaign he had received telegrams asking him to silence the "outrageous" report that he was associated with that religious denomination. Going on the president said that such sentiments throughout the country as that should convince all Unitarians of the necessity of wider evangelization. He said that there was a misconception as to the tenets of this faith and that there was need of showing the world that the Unitarian church stands for the broadest principles of Christianity, the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

Called Back to Washington.
Halifax, N. S., April 24.—After one day in Halifax, which was to have been part of a week's visit to Nova Scotia, former United States Senator Beveridge has gone to Washington in response to a telegram asking for his immediate return.

Reported Capture Untrue.
Paris, April 24.—The government has received a message from Fez dated April 15, in which it is stated that the situation was then unchanged, thus proving that the reported capture of Fez by the rebel tribesmen was untrue.

LAST WEEK TO PAY TAXES HAS ARRIVED

County Treasurer's Office in Court
House Will be Open Each Evening
From 7:30 to 9 O'clock.

FINAL RUSH IS ANTICIPATED

Now that the last week of tax paying is here, William M. McBride, county treasurer has made arrangements to have the office in the court house open in the evening. The office will close at five o'clock so as to close up the day's business and will be open each evening this week from 7:30 until 9 o'clock to accommodate the factory men and those who can not find it convenient to call at the office during the day. The tax paying period closes earlier than usual this year, due to the fact that the first Monday in May falls on the first day of May. The tax paying so far has been rather slow and Treasurer McBride is anticipating a very busy week. He has an able corps of assistants and it is expected that he will handle the rush of business this week in good order.

FROST FELL LAST NIGHT

Crop Experts Are Unable to Determine Damage at Present.

Rushville people awakened this morning and were surprised to find a heavy frost on the ground. To what extent the frost fell is not known, but many farmers from the out townships say that it was prevalent there. It is impossible to estimate just what damage such a frost will do to the crops at this time. It is said that the fruit is not very far advanced and that it will not be greatly damaged. Crop experts declare that frost at this time is not very injurious to other crops.

HEAD'S POWER IS LIMITED

County Superintendent Can Not Select Site After Controversy.

In answer to a query from a county superintendent, Charles A. Great-house, State superintendent of public instruction, has held that in deciding a controversy between a township trustee and patrons of a school district, when the latter have remonstrated against a proposed site for a new school building, the county superintendent may only decide for or against the site in question, and may not, on the strength of the question put to him, order that the building shall be placed on any other site selected by him. The answer was in line with a supreme court decision in a case where a similar question was presented.

TRAFFIC DELAYED ON C.H. & D.

Five Carloads of Coal Went Over an Embankment in Connersville.

Traffic on the C. H. & D. was delayed yesterday on account of a wreck in Connersville. Five carloads of coal went over the high embankment caused by the spreading of the rails. The track bed was supposed to be in a soggy condition and the rails spread when the heavy train passed over. The Sunday excursion to Cincinnati did not get out of Connersville until after twelve o'clock.
